

Aboriginal art

 The Royal Alberta Museum is in Edmonton. The museum bought some historic pieces of Aboriginal art at an auction this year.

The museum plans to display the pieces in March 2007.

Pieces went to Europe

A Scottish man collected the pieces when he visited North America in 1859 and 1860. He took them back to Europe.

Here are 2 bags

A Cree woman probably made this bag. She used porcupine quills to make designs.

This Métis bag has beautiful beadwork.

Adapted from the Edmonton Journal • Art: Guy Parsons • Photos: Edmonton Journal (Larry Wong)